

HARRISBURG SCHOOL CHILDREN ENJOY TRAIN RIDE—When the Big Four passenger pulled into the Harrisburg station Friday morning it carried more than 100 passengers, most of them having just completed their first ride on a train. Pupils of the kindergarten and first grades at Horace Mann, their teachers and some of the kindergarten mothers travelled by automobile to Eldorado Friday morning and returned to Harrisburg on the train. Each passenger carried their own ticket, which was punched and returned by the conductor. The train also carried a big supply of ice water and each passenger had the opportunity to get a drink. As they left the train they walked through the pullman and were shown the beds. The children were from Mayme Carroll's kindergarten and first grades taught by Iola Sullivan and Mattie Martin. Twister Hits in Missouri After 6-State Warning

By United Press

A tornado ripped into farm buildings near Fawcett, Mo., Friday night causing considerable property damage but no injuries according to state police.

The Fawcett twister was the only damaging tornado reported early today and confirmed by authorities in a Midwestern area including Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan.

Residents of all six states had been warned by forecasters of tornado conditions extending into the night. The last warning was lifted for eastern Kansas and northern Missouri at 3 a. m. EST.

A tornado funnel was seen near Overbrook, Kan., but no damage or injuries were reported. There also were unconfirmed reports of tornadoes near Kalamazoo, Saugatuck and Grand Haven, Mich.

Home owners in southern Michigan heaved a collective sigh of relief Friday night when the Weather Bureau cancelled a tornado warning issued early in the afternoon.

Officials rushed into action to prevent a repeat of the April 3 disaster in which 18 persons died. Two tornadoes were reported sighted in the air but both disappeared before they touched the ground.

Warnings posted for southern Wisconsin, northern Illinois and Indiana were withdrawn after the area was drenched by heavy rains driven before high winds. Lightning and thunder accompanied the storm.

Son of Nuclear Physicist Found Dead in Hotel

AUGUSTA, Maine (U.P.)—Authorities today awaited an autopsy report into the mysterious death of a Colby College freshman, son of a German nuclear physicist.

The badly-decomposed body of Jobst Wundt, 19, Winchester, Mass., was found in a hotel room in Augusta Friday night.

Officials said he apparently had been dead for several days. He had been missing from the Colby campus since Tuesday night.

The slightly-built youth was the son of Dr. and Mrs. Rolf M. Wundt, who came to the United States eight years ago from Germany. The father currently is engaged in nuclear experiments at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The family was in seclusion today.

PUEBLO, Colo. (U.P.)—Grade school teachers and a school board member waged a war today over a teacher who is also a part-time bartender.

Three sixth grade teachers have resigned in the past three days in an apparent move to force the resignation of the school board member, Homer Thompson.

There were unconfirmed reports that one teacher in School Dist. 60 would resign each day until the board member resigns his post.

The resignations started when the school board refused to renew the contract of another teacher, Theodore Colton, a part-time bartender. Colton was notified by registered letter last month that his contract, which expires at the end of the present semester, was not being extended.

Colton said he would stop his barkeeping if the board renewed his contract. Under the tenure rules the board could only have removed Colton for cause after this term.

The sixth grade teachers started to submit their resignations Wednesday when Mrs. Gene Miller resigned. Her husband resigned the following day and Bert Stites resigned Friday.

William A. Lovette, a grade school teacher, also resigned as president of the Pueblo Education Assn. because one board member had failed to "exhibit confidence" in the Pueblo teaching staff.

Three Take Radiological Monitor Course

Miss Elizabeth Longbons of Harrisburg high school, Guy DeNeal of Equality high school and Robert Ledbetter of Eldorado high school are taking a radiological monitoring course for volunteer monitor instructors offered by the Radiological Safety Services of the Illinois Office of Civil Defense.

The course will provide knowledge and understanding of nuclear radiation and its biological significance, as well as of organization, plans and operations of Civil Defense, Ray Altire, county Civil Defense director, pointed out.

He said that after the three complete the course, which consists of 30 hours of classroom, laboratory and field work, this county will receive three kits of radiological training equipment valued at $1,000 each. The government, which will place the kits free of charge, also will maintain them, Mr. Altire declared.

Some of the subjects that are being studied in the course are: Phenomenology of Nuclear Weapons; Nuclear Radiations; Definitions and Conversions; Operation of Field Survey Instruments; Introduction to a Radiation Field; Biological Effects of Radiation; Dosage; Measuring Instruments and Devices; Maximum Permissible Exposure Levels; Evaluation Techniques; Contamination and Decontamination; Shielding and Shielding Measurements; Operations and Relationships of the Radiological Safety Services.

Citizens-for-Ike Groups Pledge Nixon Support

Leaders Urge Name to Include Both for Campaign

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—Citizens-for-Eisenhower leaders are pledging their support for Vice President Richard M. Nixon's bid for renomination.

This support apparently will be all-out.

Peter H. Clayton, counsel of the present Citizens - for - Eisenhower organization, telegraphed Nixon Friday suggesting the name be changed to Citizens - for - Eisenhower - and - Nixon. Farmer national Citizens - for - Eisenhower Chairman James Murphy proposed the same in a telegram from San Francisco.

This seemed to be an abrupt change of front among Citizens-for-Eisenhower top strategists.

Makes No Comment

Gen. Lucius Clay, chief figure on the board now managing Citizens-for-Eisenhower activities, was reported about six weeks ago to be a leader in the drop Nixon campaign. Clay made no comment at that time on reports that he was seeking to keep Nixon off the 1956 Republican ticket.

Other political news: Sen. Estes Kefauver, Democratic presidential candidate, charged at Spokane, Wash., that business is bigger and farmers are poorer under the Republican administration. He said the administration has "replaced campaign promises with excuses."

AFL-CIO President George Meany attacked both the Democratic and Republican parties. He hit the Democratic Party for "its Dixiecrats and its record on civil rights," the Republican Party for "its subservience to big business."

Adlai Stevenson held his big lead over Kefauver in the Alaskan Democratic presidential primary. The slow count in the Tuesday election gave Stevenson 5,518 votes to 3,689 for Kefauver with 165 of 279 precincts reporting.

C. Stone, Eldorado, Inez Reinger and Ollie Thompson, both of Brookport.

The body at 2 p. m. today will be taken from the Turner funeral home to the home of the mother, 108 Sherman street.

Gore Predicts Senate Will Substitute $18 Billion Highway Bill for House Plan

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) predicted today the Senate will substitute his $18 billion highway program for the $51.5 billion one passed by the House.

Gore's highway program would run for five years. The Democratic program from the House would run for 13 years.

The House Friday overwhelmingly passed its highway program calling for tax increases on gas, tires and trucks.

Gore is chairman of the Senate public works subcommittee on highways. The Senate last year passed his bill in preference to a 10-year $39.1 billion program proposed by the President.

Senate action probably will not come for at least two weeks.

Two Senate committees must act on it before it goes to the floor. The finance committee will consider the tax features and the public works committee the construction provisions.

Indications are the Senate will go along with the tax increases in the House bill. But the rates may be revised.

Chairman Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) said his Senate Finance committee will hold public hearings on the tax provisions. But consideration of Social Security legislation was expected to tie up the committee for a week or longer.

The House bill—approved 388 to 190—calls for a $27.5 billion, 40,000 mile interstate network of superhighways connecting most state capitals. The federal government would bear 30 per cent of the cost.

Another $22.6 billion would be authorized for primary, urban and secondary, or rural, roads. The federal government and the states would share this cost equally.

The federal government would stand all the cost of $1.4 billion of national forest and park roads.

3 Sailors Rebuff Soviet Envoy in Salty Language

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—Three of four Soviet sailors who rebuffed the Soviet ambassador in searing language headed today for Capitol Hill to tell how the Reds lured their shipmates home.

The Senate internal security subcommittee invited the seamen to testify after they roughly turned down the personal pleas of Soviet Ambassador Georgi N. Zaroubin Friday to return to Russia.

Five of their shipmates who joined them in seeking asylum in the United States last fall were whisked out of New York April 7 by Soviet officials.

One of the four who remained, Viktor Soloviyev, 20, told the subcommittee last week that Soviet agents tried to lure him back with letters from his mother. The letters warned of retaliation against his family if he did not return.

The other three sailors are Michael Ivanov-Nikolov, Victor Tarnikov and Ben Ermenko. Zaroubin, a hastily-called Immigration Service hearing tried to convince each of them to go home. But the sailors told newsmen later they told the Red diplomat, "When Russia is free, we will go back."

One sailor told a Russian-speaking reporter he backed his refusal with a salty but unprintable command to Zaroubin.

The ambassador left in a black Cadillac, brushing aside reporters with "I'm sorry, I'm sorry."

The United States this week expelled two low-ranking members of the Soviet mission to the United Nations for their "particularly objectionable" part in persuading the other five sailors to leave. It also rebuked Arkady A. Sobolev, chief Soviet U. N. delegate, for his part in the affair.

Gov't to Sue Cheese Firms For Payments

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—The government plans to seek a court test of an alleged "unauthorized and improper" cheese deal that cost the taxpayers two million dollars.

Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson announced Friday Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. will file "one or more suits" to get a judicial ruling on Agriculture Department payments to a group of cheese-makers in 1954.

The General Accounting Office has officially labelled the payments "unauthorized and improper."

Rep. L. H. Fountain (D-N.C.), chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee that investigated the cheese deal, said Brownell has told the cheese-makers they have one week to pay up or face court action.

Fountain said Brownell "intends to collect the entire amount." The congressman denounced the payments as a "windfall."

The case arose when the Agriculture Department bought 86,700,000 pounds of cheese from cheese-makers in the spring of 1954 as a means of bolstering prices. Shortly after the purchase, the department slashed dairy price supports from 90 per cent of parity to 75 per cent of parity. Parity is the so-called "fair level" of farm prices in relation to the overall economy.

After the price went down the cheese was re-sold to the same firms at the lower price. Actually the whole deal was a "paper" transaction. The cheese never left the companies' warehouses.

The government paid the firms the difference between 37 cents a pound, for which it "bought" the cheese, and the 34 cents for which it resold it to them. The companies thus received two million dollars.

Dies at Tunnel Hill

Frank Casey, 78, died at his home in Tunnel Hill Friday evening. The body was taken to the home of a daughter, Mrs. Gus Choate, to lie in state. Funeral plans are incomplete.

Biggest One-Family Affair in Canada History

Four Sisters, Two Brothers Marry Fellow Hollanders

BLLENHEIM, Ont. (U.P.)—Six confused and excited members of a Dutch immigrant family marry fellow Hollanders today in the biggest one-family affair in modern Canadian history.

"This is our answer to the Grace Kelly wedding," boasted Leo Dorsers, proud but dazed father of 15 who will lose four of his daughters and two sons from the family farm outside of town.

Almost 50 newsmen, photographers, radio and television men swarmed into this town set in flat, rich farm country near the shores of Lake Erie.

Church to be Packed

But many of them won't be able to fit into St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church for the mass wedding. The aisle will be crammed with the six Dorsers and the six Dutch Canadians they are marrying, besides six best men, four bridesmaids and three flower girls.

There is a festive air about the town today. Church officials said there would be standing room only by the time the 150 family friends of the Dorsers and their spouses were accommodated.

There is one very troubled little girl, however. She is seven-year-old Wilma Timmermans.

Wilma is going to carry six wedding rings on a cushion down the aisle during the service. And she is wondering—along with the six brides and six bridegrooms—if she will get the right ring to the right bridegroom at the right time.

The Dorsers family came to Canada from Helden, Holland two years ago, leaving behind three married daughters. Another daughter is married to John Timmermans of Blenheim. Following today's weddings there still will be three boys and two girls on the 11-acre family farm.

The brides, Grada, Wilhelmina, Dora and Christina Dorsers and Anne Haavelmanns and Joan Menheers all will wear identical full-length wedding gowns. The groomsmen, Andrew and Cornelius Dorsers, William Venderberg, Bernard Luiking, Jack Van Hare and Gerard Willemssen, bought new dark blue suits for the wedding.

The nuptial Mass will be conducted by three priests. Then the newlyweds and at least 200 guests from the seven families involved will pack into a local hall for country and modern dancing and a whopping big wedding breakfast.

Rites Sunday for Albert Grousky, 36 Accident Victim

He was employed in the street department in Chicago.

Besides his wife and two children he leaves two brothers, William and Joe Jr., both of Chicago, and four sisters, Mrs. Ann Gibbons, Carrier Mills, Mrs. Mary Myers, Mrs. Margaret Blazek and Mrs. Nellie Dunburger, all of Chicago.

The body will arrive in Harrisburg Sunday morning and services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Gibbons funeral chapel. Father T. G. Bruns will officiate and burial will be in Sunset Gardens cemetery.

MEMBERS OF RINGGOLD PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, south of Shawneetown, prepared ground for their fifth annual Lord's Acre project Friday. The church has the use of 25 acres of ground located about 8½ miles southwest of Shawneetown on the Margaret Logsdon farm for the planting of a Lord's Acre crop and yesterday the ground was made ready for corn. Planting date has been set for May 15. At 8 a. m. Friday 14 tractors and 25 men were at the acreage ready to plow and disc and by noon the ground was ready for planting. At the noon hour women of the church spread a delicious dinner on a wagon bed at the edge of the field. Three brands of yellow corn — Pioneer, Bojac and Haudrich — will be planted. The project has proved successful in every way. One year more than $800 was added to the church treasury and interest in the church has increased steadily. Rev. Rowland Westervelt, the pastor, stated. Rev. Westervelt pastors the Shawneetown and Ringgold Presbyterian churches, holding morning worship services each Sunday at the former and at Ringgold in the evening. The churches also have Sunday school and midweek prayer services. Tractors for yesterday's work were donated by Charles Willis, H. H. Barlow, Raymond Brazier and Harry Gross, two each and William Smith, Millard Smith, Fred Harris, Joe Logsdon, Kenneth Rich and Ezra Grace. Other men working on the project were John Smith, D. A. Richeson, P. D. Williams, Lawrence McCabe, Gordon Oze, Ronnie McCabe, Henry Williams, Bob Brazier, Leroy Capeheart, Joe Capeheart, L. Corn, Melvin Willis, Loren Brazier, Ezra Douglas and Rev. Westervelt. (Daily Register Staff Photos)

Weapons Race Is Crucial

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT
There was a time when the free world scoffed at many of Russia's boasts in the weapons field. It has learned not to take them lightly. And it will not shrug off the latest claim that the Soviet military soon will have guided missiles with H-bomb warheads capable of striking any spot on earth.

This particular boast may well represent substantial exaggeration.
After all, the globe is a pretty big place. And even though the Soviet Union spreads across 6,000 miles and its satellites and allies give it actual or potential command of vast additional areas, that still leaves a lot of territory a long way from Communist-held soil.

Furthermore, as the Russians define it, "soon" may be quite a ways in the future. They do not spell it out in terms of years or months.

Yet there is no reason for us in America, or for our friends abroad, to take great comfort from these likely exaggerations.
Cut away a good deal from what Nikita Khrushchev said and you still have plenty to worry about.

He talked, of course, about the so-called intercontinental ballistic missile which the experts believe can be perfected to deliver an H-bomb warhead to a range of some 5,000 miles.

Some of our own lawmakers are convinced Russia is indeed ahead of the United States in the race to produce such a weapon. And President Eisenhower has ac-knowledgeed that we trail Moscow in some aspects of the guided missile race, though he does not specify which aspects.

In any event, there can be no doubt whatsoever that the Kremlin is pressing hard to beat us to this all-important goal. Whether or not the Russians are ahead today, we know quite well we have not won this vital contest.

We have all known for a long time that to fall far behind in the race would be to invite Russia to risk military assault on the free world. But even if we are close behind, the damage to our cause could be severe.

Every uncommitted nation and many of the weaker free world countries are watching to see who will be second, however narrowly. If the front-runner is Russia, the "neutralist" pressures will become intense. The word will go about in many quarters to seek peace on the Kremlin's terms.
That is what Khrushchev is playing for when he boasts now.
He knows Russia has convinced the toughest skeptics that it does not often deal in wholly empty claims regarding weapons. Thus he knows that even exaggerated boasts will be at least partly believed by many, many men.

The Soviet leaders came to Britain speaking again of "peace," as they have so often in recent times. But it is utterly plain from Khrushchev's digression into military matters that Russia is thinking of peace according to its own dictates—not the free world's.
This is a lesson that ought not be lost on us if we should dare at this juncture to be complacent about our position in the crucial guided missile race.

THE POWER OF THE GOSPEL OF CHRIST

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND by DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
Justice Department Takes Initiative In Probing Critical Guided-Missiles Expert; Ike Rewards Embarrassed Waiter; Brownell Cracks Down On Long List Of Democrats.

WASHINGTON. — An important detail was omitted from the story the Justice Department leaked out about Trevor Gardner, the guided-missiles expert who has been such a severe critic of the Eisenhower administration for bogging down on guided missiles.

Attorney General Brownell's boys tipped off INS reporter Ruth Montgomery that the Senate Investigating committee had forwarded its Gardner file to the Justice Department. Implication was that the senators wanted the Justice Department to check the file for possible law violations.

But what Brownell's boys neglected to mention was that the Justice Department specifically requested the file. Deputy Attorney General Bill Rogers sent the committee a formal letter asking for all its records on Gardner. In other words, it is the Justice Department, not the Senate, which is trying to revive the case.

This is in direct contrast to what the Justice Department has done in other cases. The Senate committee heard conflicting testimony during its investigation of ICC Commissioner Hugh W. Cross indicating that someone committed perjury. Yet the Justice Department showed not the slightest interest in reviewing this case.

The Justice Department also has done nothing about other conflict-of-interest cases, including former Air Force Secretary Harold Talbott, Public Buildings Commissioner Peter Strobel and Carl O.
Hanson, the Farm Home Administrator in Montana. Under the circumstances, Brownell's sudden interest seems strange.

As a result senators suspect that Brownell is retaliating against Gardner for opposing the administration's guided-missiles program. A staunch Republican, Gardner resigned as assistant Air Force secretary with a blast at the administration for putting economy ahead of defense in the guided-missiles field.

Gardner's views are banner-lined in the current issue of Look Magazine. Unhappily for the administration, this coincides with Communist Party Boss Nikita Khrushchev's open boast that Russia will develop a hydrogen-headed, intercontinental missile ahead of the United States.

One reason senators believe the Justice Department's move against Gardner is politically motivated is that the Senate Investigating committee, after thorough investigation, dropped the evidence that Gardner had conducted personal business on official Air Force trips, but it was not considered serious enough to pursue. In fact, he was not even asked to testify.

IKE AND WAITER

President Eisenhower was sitting at the head table at the American Society of Newspaper Editors' dinner. The ballroom of the Statler was a beehive of activity, as waiters scurried to clear the tables before the speeches.
Suddenly there was a terrific clatter.

A waiter had dropped a tray.
Furthermore, he dropped it not far from the President. People around the President jumped. Head waiters scowled. To drop a tray at a big official dinner in the presence of the President is like a soldier being out of step as a crack guard of honor is reviewed by the President.

The waiter, red-faced, stooped and began to gather in his scattered dishes.
Suddenly the President turned and beckoned to him. The waiter approached. Ike handed him three crisp new one-dollar bills.

Beaming, the waiter retreated with his dishes.

"POLITICAL" PROSECUTION
The income-tax investigation of Senator Barkley ("The Veep") plus the trial of Truman's former Secretary Matt Connelly on May 6 plus the income-tax probe of eight Democratic congressmen seems to indicate a general pattern of crackdown timed for this political year.

Shortly after Attorney General Brownell took office he cracked down on several Democrats but they backed off. Among them was an indictment of Herbert Bergson, former assistant attorney general under Truman for a conflict of interest not as clear-cut as that which forced the resignation of Harold Talbott as secretary of the Air Force or Peter Strobel as government buildings administrator.
When Bergson's case came up for trial, it was thrown out of court.

Another indictment was brought against ex-Congressman Joseph Casey, Democrat, who ran for the Senate against Hery Cabot Lodge in Massachusetts. Casey was charged with a conspiracy to put former government tankers under foreign ownership. Again, the court threw the case out.

Owen Lattimore, though originally indicted by Truman's attorney general James McGranery, was vigorously prosecuted by Brownell, with a reinvestment brought after the courts had thrown out the most important part of the case. Finally Brownell had to abandon the case altogether.

ST. LOUIS INDICTMENTS

More recently the Justice Department has indicted Matt Connelly and Lamar Caudle, former assistant attorney general, on a charge of conspiracy in failing to prosecute an income-tax case. The indictments were brought after grand juries had been held in both Omaha and Kansas City.
Finally after jury shopping in three cities, the Justice Department discovered that a St. Louis grand jury was anxious to proceed with various indictments.

Connelly and Caudle have both moved to transfer their trial to Washington where the events they are charged with actually took place, and because of the prejudicial atmosphere in St. Louis.
Both will have to transport witnesses a long distance from Washington to St. Louis for the trial and neither has the funds to meet this heavy expense. The Justice Department, however, has objected to any transfer.

Meanwhile, when the father of Gov. Allen Shivers' campaign manager in Texas was indicted by Brownell for mixing hog feed with good U. S. government-owned grain at the port of Galveston, Gov. Shivers flew to Washington, lunched with Ike, and a few days later the indictments against E.
H. Thornton, Sr., and members of the Argentine Bunge Corporation were dropped.

Montgomery-Ward Votes Stock Split

CHICAGO (U) — Stockholders of Montgomery Ward and Co. voted approval of a 2-for-1 stock split Friday at the annual meeting of the giant mail order firm.

The session was quiet and orderly compared with last year's tense meeting in which Louis F. Wolfson attempted to seize control of the company from Sewell Avery and lost.

John A. Barr was re-elected chairman of the board. Seven other directors were re-elected, and three new directors were elected.

"GEE, I FEEL LIKE A MOVIE STAR!" exclaimed 11-year-old Linda Sue Whitaker, center, during her big day April 18 as winner in a "Name The Camp" contest sponsored by the Educational Council of 100. The 11-year-old Mt. Vernon, Ill., sixth grader was treated to a plane trip over, and a boat trip around, the 1500-acre camp area on Little Grassy Lake near Carbondale which she named "Si-Bo-Gi." Her suggestion, an abbreviation for Southern Illinois Boys and Girls, was chosen from among more than 600 entries. The area will be developed into a vast children's recreation and out-door education camp. Pictured with Linda as she is greeted on the Southern Illinois university campus are her sister, Marcia, 8, and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Whitaker. (SIU Photo Service)

38 Years Is Long Time to Get Back Undelivered Letters

HOPESTON, Ill. — Earl Benner acknowledged today that it is a long way from Russia to St. Joseph, Mich., and Hoopeson, Ill., but 38 years is a long time.

The U. S. mail Thursday delivered to the Hoopeson residence of Benner, now in his mid 50s, a pair of letters he mailed in Russia in 1918 and 1919. He had sent them to his sister, Mrs. Charles Michaels, at St. Joseph.

Mrs. Michaels died last week in Goshen, Ind.

Benner said the envelopes, yellowed with age, were enclosed in a bright white envelope from Washington, D. C. There was no explanation of the delay.

Benner wrote the letters from Russia while he was a member of the Allied north Russian expeditionary force there. They were mailed from Archangel.

Bircher Addresses Presbyterian Men On Stewardship

The Cairo Presbytery Council of Presbyterian Men met at the Harrisburg Presbyterian church Friday evening with approximately 100 in attendance.

Guest speaker was Jack Bircher, an elder in the First Presbyterian church of Evansville and chairman of the stewardship and promotion committee of the Presbytery of Vincennes.

Speaking on "Stewardship" the speaker declared all active churches and Christians must be stewards, as stewardship is the "reaching out to contact others and teach the Gospel of Christ."

"A good Christian not only accepts Christ and receives the Holy Spirit but also pours out this teaching to others. We must be fountains, not cisterns" if we are to fulfill Christ's command to go into all the world and teach the Gospel," Mr. Bircher stated.

The president of the council is Jack Hale of Ridgway and the Ridgway church furnished most of the program. Dr. Joe Bryant gave the devotional, Paul Cotton and Joe Hale led the group singing and a quartet from the Ridgway church sang a hymn.

Mothers Will Be Honored at U. I. May 4-5-6

Mothers of University of Illinois students will be in the spotlight May 4, 5 and 6 as Mothers Day is observed on the campus where the idea of such a collegiate observance originated in 1921.

Highlights of the week end will include the annual meeting of the University of Illinois Mothers association, established in 1920 and oldest and largest of its kind.

Mothers who plan to attend from Saline county are invited to the "Coffee Hour" from 9 to 10 a. m. Saturday morning, May 5, at the Illinois Union Ballroom, and are urged to attend the Mothers Association meeting following the Coffee hour. President David D. Henry of the college will address the association. Dean Miriam Sheldon and Dean E. E. Stafford will also extend a welcome to the mothers.

Every mother is automatically a member of the association, however, a mother who pays her one dollar dues at the registration desk in the Illinois Union Friday from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. and Saturday from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. becomes a contributing member. The money is used in a scholarship fund to help students to further their education.

Mrs. B. G. Funkhouser is chairman of the Saline County Mothers Association, and asks that mothers contact her for further information.

THANKS

My most humble thanks to my friends in both political parties everywhere for rooting for me in the chattering session in my recent committee race and other extenuating circumstances, including my present illness. Your flowers, cards, telephone calls, handshakes, words, and nods of encouragement have meant a great deal to me in these trying crises. I am most grateful, I believe, for the school children's waves of encouragement at my passing automobile. It has been said that it is a good omen to have the children on your side when the chips are down because more often it reflects the sentiment of the parents. This, I believe.

Known to be an aggressive organizational Republican since 1922, I have always believed in fair play and have never resorted to underhanded methods, which has helped me to command the respect and friendship of the rank and file Democratic voter and his leadership, as well.

I am not exactly a martyr to the Republican cause but I will admit that my rewards have been few and meagerly. I am constantly reminded that the best appointment I have ever received, required 15 to 18 hours work, daily, which included 8 hours of driving on a job that entailed travel of 16 counties, with a mileage loss of approximately $10 on each itinerary. Granted that I have never received anything but crumbs from the Republican table and jobs commensurate of my money, time, talent and effort for my party, have gone to some other less active Republicans, I am still loyal to my party and will remain so.

Thanks again for your prayers and good wishes,

THE VERY SAKE,

JESSIE B. EVANS

who still believes, like the Swede that it is "a long road that won't come back" and still expects to command her well-earned seat at the "patronage table" under the Stratton Administration.

UNUSUAL LOSSES COVERED

Late last summer, Guy Price finished building himself a fine new home at the corner of Church and Granger Streets in Harrisburg, Illinois, and the same day he moved in he asked the Robertson-Ghent Insurance Agency to write him coverage under a Homeowners Contract. As you know, these new type Homeowners Contracts provide many coverages against unusual losses which have previously been unavailable to most of us. It so happened that Guy Price experienced two of these unusual type losses, and both of them were covered under his new Homeowners Contract, and both of them would not have been covered under the old style policy he was previously carrying.

For example, the day after the inception of the policy, and before it was even issued, Mr. Price went hunting and someone broke into his unattended automobile and feloniously removed several articles of his personal hunting equipment. Guy, of course, didn't even realize that his new policy covered these items, but during a subsequent conversation, he learned that coverage was there, and our Company was delighted to reimburse him for his loss.

A little later on during the winter, there occurred a considerable snow one evening. As most of you know, when a house is properly insulated, the snow doesn't usually melt off the roof all in one day. Consequently, it melts a little during the day and freezes back at night. During this process, the ice is forced between and under the shingles by the tremendous power of the expansion due to the freezing and after several days of this the shingles are raised up to such an extent that a little bit of wind can ruin a complete roof.

This is exactly what happened to Guy's home, and of course this damage by ice and snow would not be covered under a Fire and Extended Coverage Policy. However, in Guy's case, his Homeowners Contract protected him completely and paid for replacing his roof without any cost whatsoever to him.

Woods Have Low Grazing Value

Tests at Purdue and Wisconsin show that you'll need at least six acres for each animal to get the normal steer gains in your farm woodland that you can expect from open, unimproved pasture.

And that figure jumps to 12 acres a head if you want the same gain you can get from improved pasture, according to L. B. Culver, extension forester at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

In addition, you run the risk that such plants as white snakeroot, cherry, buckeye, Dutchman's breeches, squirrel corn and oak leaves and acorns may poison your stock.

Livestock in your woodlands will cause much damage, too, Culver says. In the first place, grazing stock trample and compact the soil. Tighter soil increases water runoff and erosion. The trampling wounds the shallow feeding roots of the trees, and soil compaction in that area prevents both water and air from reaching the roots.

In addition, the destruction of young seedlings means that the woodland does not have a normal supply of young trees growing to take the place of harvested ones. More open space lets drying winds blow through and makes the woodland more sensitive to dry weather when tree growth stops.

Cortisone is Useful In Treating Animals

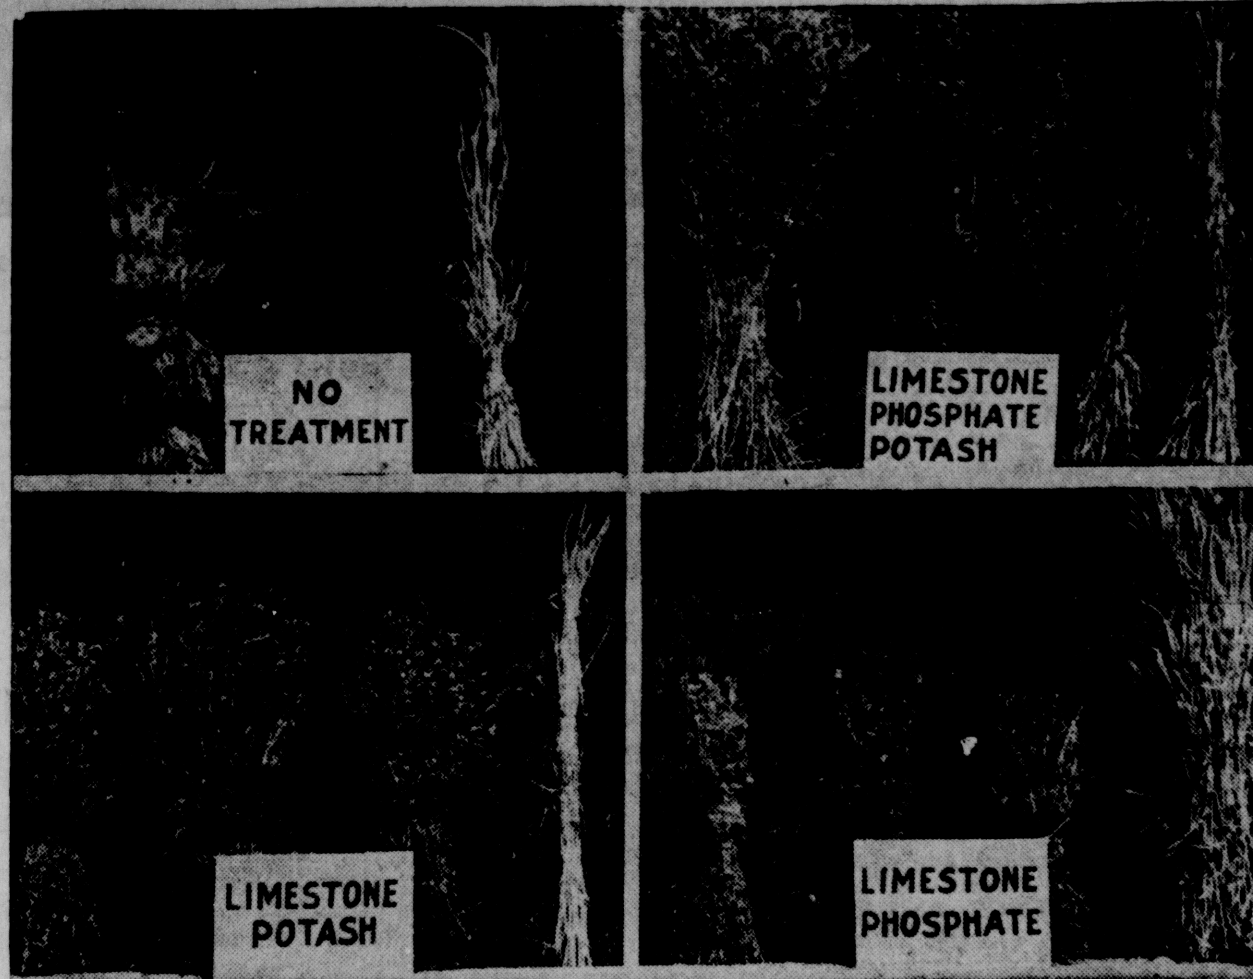

EAST LANSING, Mich. —(U.P.)—Dr. S. F. Schiedy of the University of Pennsylvania recently told a conference of veterinarians at Michigan State University that cortisone can be used in treating arthritis in dogs, ketosis in cattle, and many other animal diseases.

Cortisone has been used quite effectively, Dr. Schiedy said, in the treatment of certain eye and skin conditions in dogs and arthritis in horses and dogs.

A good way to apply garden insecticides for soil insects is to mix them with the fertilizer.

LEGUME IS KEY CROP

Soil treatment applied according to test not only increases the yield of legumes and improves their feeding and soil-building value, says C. M. Linsley, soils extension specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture. It also determines the proportion of legumes that grow in legume-grass mixtures.

This effect of soil treatment can be seen every year on plots of the University soil experiment fields. To measure these differences, Pat Johnson, soil fertility specialist in charge of a group of soil experiment fields in southern Illinois, took samples of the first hay crop from four different soil treatment plots on the Newton Soil Experiment Field. He separated and weighed the different kinds of plants in each sample.

One plot received no soil treatment. That soil was too acid and too low in phosphorus and potassium to grow legumes of any kind. It produced 640 pounds of plant growth, 85 percent of which was weeds and 15 percent timothy. The second plot received plenty of lime, phosphate and potash. It produced 4,440 pounds of hay. This hay was 46 percent alfalfa and 41 percent red clover.

When phosphate was left out of the treatment, the yield dropped to 2,280 pounds, or about half as much as yield on the plot that received full treatment. On the plot without phosphate, the percentage of alfalfa dropped sharply, while red clover and alsike clover increased. Here red clover made up more than 56 percent of the hay. These results show that alfalfa is somewhat more sensitive than either of the clovers to lack of soil phosphorus.

The fourth plot received no potash. The yield of hay was 2,260 pounds, and timothy made up 58 percent of the mixture. Timothy and other grasses — and even weeds — compete strongly for potash and are able to get potassium from soils where legumes cannot. On this fourth plot, the timothy took the potash away from the legumes and left them to starve. On soils that are short of potash, grasses or weeds soon crowd out such legumes as alfalfa and red clover.

The legumes on the limestone, phosphate and potash plot probably produced or "fixed" in the neighborhood of 120 pounds of new nitrogen from the air, while legumes on the limestone and phosphate plot fixed only about 25 pounds.

The fully treated plot also produced twice as much organic matter, most of which was legume organic matter. The much greater root growth on this plot and the larger amount of organic matter supplied by the roots have been effective in improving soil tilth. The heavier top and root growth would also do a better job of controlling erosion on rolling land.

Illinois farmers do not have to guess at what it takes to grow heavy crops of legumes and legume-grass mixtures. Soil tests will tell not only where limestone, phosphate and potash are needed, but also how much of each is needed to the acre. Your farm adviser can tell you about this soil testing service.

Don't Blame the Hens, Check the Weather

STILLWATER, Okla. —(U.P.)— If your hens go on a sit-down strike, don't blame them — blame the weather, says an Oklahoma A. & M. College poultry expert.

Alex Warren said prolonged dry weather in Oklahoma fills the air with static electricity. It makes hens nervous, especially the caged layers, and nervous hens don't lay eggs.

Warren said experiments have shown that if poultry raisers ground each row of cages with copper wire, the hens will overcome their nervousness and lay more eggs.

How to Guarantee No Results in Your Garden

Spring is here, and thousands of amateur gardeners are donning their new bib overalls and running out to their back yards.

From C. Y. Arnold, associate professor of vegetable crops at the University of Illinois, comes a list of rules that should guarantee any backyard gardener the worst-looking and worst-producing garden in his area.

To start, don't have your soil analyzed. What do you care if your soil is too acid. You've gone to work with heartburn — why shouldn't it?

Spade your garden when it's wet. It will leave the ground as lumpy as cement chunks. Murder on crops, but it's great for raising Rocky Mountain goats.

Pay no attention to planting tables. The late Robert Benchley planted his potatoes a few months late and didn't do badly at all. "Got some the size of golf balls, some the size of marbles, and a lot of small ones," he reported. Crowding crops, cultivating root deep or letting weeds grow free should help to put the unsuccessful gardener well on his way to becoming lord and master of one of the biggest plots of nothing in any backyard.

Shade Trees May Cause Lawn Problems

Poor grass under trees results from competition of the tree roots for moisture and plant food, from too much shade and from smothering by fallen leaves.

H. R. Kemmerer, extension landscape specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, says that putting more fertilizer than normal under the crown of the tree will help to take care of the needs of the tree as well as the grass.

And you can water around the trees enough in dry weather to soak the soil several inches deep so that both trees and grass will get enough moisture.

Plant grasses that will grow better in the shade than will Kentucky bluegrass, Kemmerer suggests. Red fescue and trivialis bluegrass are recommended for the north-central states.

Rake fallen leaves promptly to prevent them from smothering the grass. When you can, it is a good idea to force grass into rapid growth while the leaves are off the trees. That will help you to get a good turf before the area becomes too shaded. You can do it by fertilizing in the spring and fall and by watering whenever the soil is dry.

If you still cannot grow grass in your shaded areas in spite of enough fertilizing and other steps, you'll probably be more satisfied

May 25 Deadline For Excess Wheat Acreage

Wheat growers in Saline county who have excess wheat can still get into compliance if by May 25 they will turn under such acres for green manure, cut it for hay or silage, clip, or pasture it so as to prevent maturity, it was announced today by Herman Driskell, local ASC chairman.

All farmers who have wheat acreage in excess of the allotment should carefully check the following rules, warned Mr. Driskell.

1. If there are more than 15 acres of wheat on a farm, and such acreage is in excess of the allotment a marketing penalty will be established. Suppose the allotment is nine acres and there are 17 acres of wheat. A penalty will apply on all the acres in excess of the allotment or on eight acres in this case.

2. In no instance will price support be available for wheat produced on a farm on which the allotment is exceeded.

3. Marketing quotas do not apply to farms with 15 or less acres of what, but don't be misled by this provision. Once the 15 acre mark is passed the penalty applies to every acre in excess of the allotment. Suppose there is no allotment on a farm. Up to 15 acres may be grown without penalty. If 16 acres are grown in this case a penalty would be established on the entire 16 acres. One extra acre would then result in a 16 acre penalty.

"Any producer desiring to utilize a part of his acreage for green manure, hay, pasture or silage in order to avoid penalty, or become eligible for price support, or both, should take such action sometime ahead of the May 25 deadline date. It's always possible for the weather to turn bad," said Mr. Driskell, "and we would hate to have any of our farmers lose out by just one or two days."

"In all instances where farmers take advantage of this provision it will be necessary for a second inspection of the farm to be made. We would, therefore, appreciate farmers advising us as early as possible of their intentions. Notice should also be given our ASC office if there are any cases where, by oversight, we have failed to check on the wheat acreage. No marketing cards can be issued until a farm has been measured, so it's to the producer's advantage to make certain that compliance has been checked," Mr. Driskell stated.

Three or four months of open-air curing should season home-cut lumber well enough if it is properly stacked, says a University of Illinois forester.

if you plant ground cover like vinca, pachysandra or purpleleaf euonymus, Kemmerer says.

Drought Again Threatening in Northern Area

SPRINGFIELD —The spectre of severe drought today shoved worry about federal farm policies into second place on many Illinois farms.

A three-year drought that apparently was broken last year is threatening again.

The dry area, however, moved further north, replacing southern Illinois as the critical section. The northwest area was hardest hit. Lingering cold weather didn't help either.

The State-Federal Crop Reporting Service here said farmers reported large number of dry wells, and some farmers already are hauling water for their livestock. Spring rains, which normally build up water levels and provide subsoil reserves for the summer, have failed to materialize.

Southern Illinois, hardest hit by the drought in 1952-54, has fared better with more than 3 inches reported in some areas, and even heavier rain all in the extreme south.

J. A. Ewing, crop reporting service chief at Springfield, said the dry winter and spring hasn't hurt winter grain crops yet, but rain is needed to bring up spring-planted grains.

He said there had been enough moisture for most spring plowing, but "unless the good rains pretty soon, the outlook for the year's crops is going to be very poor."

By Albert Meyer

Some advantages of climate and terrain have made certain specialty crops—fruits and vegetables—profitable in southern Illinois when grown for the early spring produce markets. Some kinds of field grown early flowers also have been money-makers for a few farmers who produce them. The region has been found to be the southern region of adaptability for apples, too.

Dr. Lowell R. Tucker, horticulturist at Southern Illinois university, says a comparison of temperature records shows that the growing season in lower southern Illinois begins two or three weeks earlier than in central Illinois and three to five weeks ahead of the Chicago area. He attributes this to the area's favorable location in the Ozarks uplift and in the path of the moisture-laden air currents from the Gulf of Mexico.

This makes possible successful competition during spring with greenhouse industries farther north in the production of specialty crops, and enables the producers to hit the market a few weeks ahead of those areas farther north where such field grown crops are important.

The advantage of an early growing season works at the other end of the season in making possible certain fall crops. Except for green beans, turnips and spinach, however, fall specialty crops are not widely grown in the area.

There also is the opportunity for such crops as sweet potatoes and okra which require a long, warm growing season. Even cotton is produced in Alexander and Pulaski counties and once was grown as much as 50 miles farther north. To date, production of such specialty crops has been most profitable when supplied to the fresh markets of the larger northern and eastern metropolitan centers. The experienced growers consistently try to hit an early market with good quality produce because that is when the profit opportunities are greatest. For example, Union county tomato growers usually expect to make most of their profit from fruit that is marketed before the middle of July.

Except for a few small ventures in the past, fruit and vegetable processing industries have not been present in the area. Growers have held to the idea of producing for the high return per unit possible on the early fresh market. In some seasons this advantage for profits extends over a longer period than in others. Nearness to a market and modern improvements in refrigerated transportation have enhanced this type of vegetable and fruit production.

It will take a substantially higher continuous production of these specialty crops than now is produced to attract processing industries to the area, Tucker believes. Canning and freezing processors require dependable supplies in steady, heavy volume to operate successfully. Normally these, particularly the canners, operate on a contract basis with producers to be assured of an approximate volume of commodities at a specified price. Both types of processors desire high quality products.

For competitive reasons processors usually cannot pay the high unit prices which southern Illinois growers get on the early fresh market.

The rapid growth in popularity of frozen foods and the higher market sales value of frozen fruits and vegetables leads to the assumption that this type of processing likely would move in first and when a dependable excess of fresh produce is available in the southern area.

Stocks of trees from the two state nurseries are limited to establishment of forest plantings and field shelterbelts, according to an extension forester at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Aldrin, dieldrin and heptachlor applied and disked under before planting will help the home gardener to control many soil-borne insects.

Keep Pullets, Hens in Separate Pens

It's usually nice to have the family all together—but not in the poultry world.

In most money-making flocks, pullets never run with older birds, says D. J. Bray, poultry extension specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Experiments and experience show that many parasites and diseases can be passed from one generation to another. In the poultry business, Bray says, trouble usually starts when old and young stock run together, use the same feeders and waterers and pick at common droppings.

You can break disease and parasite cycles by keeping young and older birds separated and by thoroughly disinfecting all houses and equipment between seasons.

The quickest way to break these cycles is to confine your laying flock and let young chickens range on alternating edges of the farmstead, the specialist says. Don't let pullets range over the same area more often than every two or three years.

Most birds will stay near the range shelter if they have plenty of vegetation, shade, feed and water close by. Keeping pullets a disease-safe distance from the poultry house doesn't necessarily mean increased labor. Pipes, hoses or portable tanks are answers to the water-carrying problem. A small, rainproof feed storage bin will cut down labor and cost of hauling feed.

Light beyond the shadows

People who see the Light that shines beyond the present shadows can walk safely along the way of life. Those who stumble in darkness and fear are the people who lack the vision of faith.

A man named Saul of Tarsus groped in the darkness of the pagan world. His heart was filled with hate and he saw them stone the servants of God. Then he saw the Light and became a new man.

The skies of life are often filled with clouds and storm. Strife and hatred, selfishness and meanness, suffering and despair, rob the day of its brightness and fill the world with woe.

But those who have the penetrating vision of faith need fear no harm. If they keep their eyes fixed on the Light that lies beyond the shadows and trust in God, they may walk in the perfect security of faith.

The blackness of night cannot quench the Light of faith; the sweeping storms of adversity cannot blot it out. It shines on undimmed into the perfect day, when the storms depart and the shadows fade away.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

'The Church Reaches Out'

Acts 8:4-35
GOLDEN TEXT: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." (John 13:35)

INTRODUCTION—Before Jesus ascended into heaven he gave his disciples the commission to preach the gospel at "Jerusalem, in Judea, Samaria and unto the uttermost parts of the world." In the first seven chapters of the book of Acts we have seen the church established in Jerusalem. We have seen this New Testament Church grow. We have watched these early Christians as they have preached in Jerusalem.

The time has now come for them to go out beyond Jerusalem into other regions to preach the good news. Christianity has always made its progress in times of persecution. When these early Christians were scattered by their persecutors in Jerusalem, they became witnesses wherever they went. Soon the gospel was being preached in distant places.

In our lesson today we find another layman being used in a mighty way for the cause of Christ. His name was Philip. We need laymen like him today!

I LAYMAN — EVANGELIST — Philip (VV. 48)

Yes, Philip was a layman, but he was one layman who was willing to witness for Christ. He preached in a hard place, too. He preached to the Samaritans.

Now, the Samaritans were half Jew and half Gentile. The Jews would have nothing to do with them. You talk about race prejudice! We do not know anything compared to the feelings that existed between the Jews and Samaritans. They would literally spit at each other when meeting on the road.

God chose Philip to preach to these people because he was a Spirit-filled layman. He was a deacon in the church at Jerusalem. A great revival broke out as a result of his preaching to the Samaritans.

II HE SPOKE BEFORE CROWDS (VV. 14-17)

Recently one was heard to comment unfavorably about mass evangelism as if it were not scriptural. Here we see an excellent example of mass evangelism. Certainly, witnessing before individuals has its proper place in soul-winning. Preaching to great crowds of people is another method which God uses to win souls.

Additional Church Notes On Page Three

The church at Jerusalem was delighted that one of their deacons was meeting with such spiritual success. They sent Peter and John, two of their best leaders, down to Samaria to assist Philip. We have witnessed some great revival meetings in our day. Billy Sunday was criticized by some, but he won thousands to Christ. Billy Graham is doing the same.

Mass evangelism is great, but so is witnessing to the individual. See how God uses Philip to preach to:

III ONE PERSON (VV. 26-28, 34-35)
Philip was in the midst of the great revival in Samaria. He felt led by God's Holy Spirit to go down into the desert and witness to one man. God can always use a person who is willing to drop everything and follow Him.

Another thing; when God leads a person to go and talk to another person, you can be sure that He is also dealing with that other person. God works on both ends of the line at one time. The eunuch was ready when Philip arrived on the scene.

CONCLUSION—It was my privilege last July to stand beside Philip's Pool, where Philip baptized the eunuch. We parked our car right where the eunuch stopped his chariot. This whole scene flashed before my memory.

Notice in the Biblical account that Philip told the eunuch the simple story of salvation. Let us do the same.

Hope Vicious Fire Halted in Lincoln National Forest

ALAMOGORDO, N. M. (AP) — Leaders of a tired band of about 1,150 firefighters were hopeful today that a vicious fire which has burned out of control for two days in Lincoln National Forest.

The U. S. Forestry Service said firelines, varying from 10 to 30 feet in width, had been set up in advance of the blaze and only extremely high winds could jump the fire over the lines.

The blaze has swept over 15,000 acres, but an aerial survey early today revealed there had been

Senators Mix Nerve and Youth to Win Third Game in Last Four Starts

By United Press

Chuck Dressen's Washington Senators, the club most of the experts picked to wind up in the American league cellar again, were breezing along in fourth place today by mixing a little nerve with a lot of youth.

They won their third game in the last four starts by beating Baltimore, 8-5, Friday night with the aid of some fine relief pitching by 23-year old rookie right-hander Connie Grob and a daring piece of base-running that figured in a decisive seventh inning rally.

After the Senators blew a five-run lead and allowed the Orioles to tie the score, they started their winning rally in the seventh with a single by Ed Yost. Former Yale baseball captain Dick Tetelbach attempted to sacrifice and Baltimore pitcher Erv Palica threw to second base, hitting the bag with his throw.

Instead of stopping at third, Yost high-tailed it all the way home and Tetelbach tore around to third from where he scored on a sacrifice fly by 25-year old Karl Olson.

Grob Gets Win As it turned out, those runs decided the ball game. Grob, who was drafted last winter from Mobile, came on the scene in the seventh, held the Orioles to one hit over the final two-and-one third innings and was credited with his first major league victory.

The White Sox remained in first place by outlasting the Athletics.

Littler Holds 4-Stroke Lead in Tourney of Champs

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — In a good position to become the first man ever to win the classic Tournament of Champions twice, Gene Littler of San Diego tied off in the third round of the tourney today holding a four-stroke advantage over his 20 competitors.

Continuing to play the 7,102-yard Desert Inn Country Club course as though he had laid it out, Littler was three under par for 36 holes on a course that has all the major hazards—long rough, distance, fast greens, six lakes, and weather that defies description.

The closest to him were four men tied at 145: Gardner Dickinson of Panama Beach City, Fla.; Lloyd Mangrum of Apple Valley, Calif.; Shelley Mayfield, of Westbury, N. Y., and stolid Ted Kroll, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

The rest of the field was strung out with five men tied at 146 and two at 147.

9-7, as southpaw Billy Pierce went the distance for his third straight victory.

Minnie Minoso led the White Sox onslaught with a double and a single which drove in three runs. Teammate Walt Droppa homered. The loser was Art Ditmar, who pitched a one-hitter against the White Sox a week ago.

Big Don Larsen pitched a six-hitter and aided his own cause with a double and a single in leading the Yankees to a 5-2 decision over the Red Sox. In handling Boston's fifth consecutive setback, Larsen pitched his way out of three jams, including a bases-loaded, none-out situation in the first inning. Tom Brewer went until the eighth and was the loser.

Bobby Avila's two-run homer with two out in the 10th inning off Frank Lary gave Cleveland a 4-3 victory over Detroit and stretched the Indians' winning streak to four straight games. Don Mossi pitched the ninth inning and was the winner although he gave way to Ray Narleski in the bottom of the 10th after Earl Torgeson homered and Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn followed with singles.

Second Four-Hitter Roger Craig pitched his second four-hitter against Pittsburgh in a week while leading Brooklyn to a 7-2 conquest. The Dodgers collected only six hits but three were homers by Jackie Robinson, Roy Campanella and Gil Hodges. Pirate starter Ronnie Kline was the loser.

A six-hit pitching effort by Allan Worthington and two-run homer by Daryl Spencer in the sixth inning paced the Giants to a 5-3 victory over the Phillies. Herm Wehmeier was the loser.

Cincinnati snapped a four-game losing streak by defeating Chicago, 7-4, despite two homers by Walt Moryn which drove in four runs. Johnny Klippstein went the route for the Redlegs and was furnished with the winning margin when Ed Bailey hit a three-run homer off Russ Meyer in the fifth.

Rain washed out the scheduled game between Milwaukee and St. Louis.

Eldorado Merchants To Play Evansville College All-Stars Sunday

The Eldorado Merchants will be host to the Evansville College All Stars, Sunday, in their baseball opener.

The All Stars are one of the best teams in the Tri-State area. They boast of a very good pitcher in the person of "Big" Jim Nichols who has pitched minor league ball.

The Merchants also will have two very good hurlers to oppose Nichols. Charles Griffith, who is the property of the Milwaukee Braves, and Joe Rollo, who belongs to the New York Yankees, will hurl for the Merchants.

Rollo pitched in the Three-I league last year and Griffith hurled in a league in Minnesota.

The Merchants' lineup will be made up of the following players: Eubanks, Cooley, Gideumb, Sandusky, Thaxton, Pulliam, Beasley, Dorris, Irvin, Gates, F. Eubanks, Williams, and Woolard.

Game time will be 2 p. m. Players should be present at 12:30 for hitting practice.

The game will be played on the Raleigh town park diamond.

Illinois Trips Purdue, 2-1

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — Illinois opened its Big Ten baseball season with a 2-1 victory over Purdue Friday.

The Illini gathered their runs with the help of a short burst of wildness by Purdue pitcher Ron Tuens in the third inning and two quick doubles in the fourth.

Ted Williams looked at the cluster of newsmen lined up in the Red Sox dugout, counted them deliberately to 16, then growled, "I wish they had a cut-down date for you guys, too." ... same old fire-eater.

Really think Branch Rickey isn't running the Pirates behind the scenes? His secretary sat in on all the spring conferences ... and was called "The Pipeline."

Like the Yankees' Bill Skowron, the Pirates' Bob Friend, who could be the best pitcher in baseball, went to Purdue on a football scholarship. ... When Rickey threatened to demote Friend to the minors a year ago, Bobby stuck a finger on the Mahatma's chest and said, "I'm not going." ... just like that.

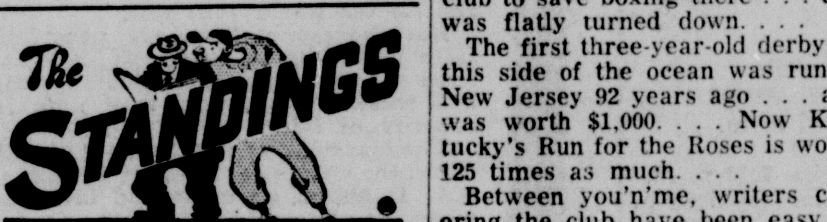

Wilt the Stilt Chamberlain has written Kutsher's in the Catskills for a summer job again ... and Milt Kutsher has a plausible reason for not turning him down—what else could he do with the seven-foot cellhop's uniform now in stock?

AAU nonsense: an unknown Israeli marathoner was flown to this country, still togged in his work clothes, and only AFTER he was already here was AAU sanction requested ... and cordially granted by Dan Ferris.

Now contrast that with the AAU jabberwocky on Landy, which almost cancelled the PROPOSED trip of the world's fastest miler.

Sammy Fuller, the old lightweight now training Tony DeMarco, is another Jake Mintz in the "woods" department. ... "You're a gentleman and a scholar," he told us ... while rubbing down the Boston welterweight with "alcohol." ... Sammy likes his bacon "crisps."

Hatcher Hurls Bull Dogs to 4-0 Win Over Foxes

Bill Hatcher hurled the Harrisburg Bull Dogs to a 4 to 0 victory over the Foxes at McLeansboro yesterday afternoon, allowing four hits and striking out nine.

Kreher, Fox hurler, was effective, too, as he held the locals to one earned run, three hits and struck out 11.

Getting Harrisburg's three hits were John Ziegler, Bill Henshaw and Bill Hatcher, all singles.

Hatcher sewed up the game in the third inning when he struck out, but the catcher dropped the ball. Hatcher began running toward first and the catcher threw high and wide to that base, the local hurler going all the way to third. He scored on Henshaw's long fly to center field.

The coals made but one hit in the sixth, but scored three runs, on walks and an error that allowed two to score.

McLeansboro made four errors, Harrisburg two.

Lee of the Foxes tripled in the first inning for the only extra base hit of the game, but was left stranded.

Monday evening the Bull Dogs play at Carrier Mills, then go to Ridgway Thursday evening.

Graham Confession Admitted by Judge After Repudiation

DENVER (AP)—John Gilbert Graham denied at his murder trial Friday that he engineered the dynamite bomb plot that killed 44 persons, including his mother in an airliner crash.

Graham, in a calm, firm voice, repudiated a 4 1-2 page typewritten confession made more than five months ago to FBI agents.

But the jurist presiding at his trial, Judge Joseph M. McDonald, ordered the confession admitted as evidence despite Graham's plea that he had signed it only after "threats" had been made to jail his 22-year old wife, Gloria.

The confession was a vital part of the prosecution's case, because the state has announced it intends to ask the death penalty for Graham if he is convicted.

A written confession of guilt is necessary under Colorado law to obtain the death penalty since the state admits it has no eyewitnesses to the deaths of those killed in the airliner crash.

State Republicans, Democrats Set Convention Dates

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Illinois Republicans have decided to hold their state convention at Bloomington May 29 in connection with the 100th anniversary of the first state GOP convention.

Democrats set their state convention for June 1 at the St. Nicholas Hotel here.

The actions were taken at perfunctory sessions of the party's state conventions, which are set by law for April 27.

Leaders of both parties said the actual convention sessions were recessed from today because all county party organizations are not yet set to name convention delegates.

Rail Engineer is Awarded $250,000 For Loss of Legs

CHICAGO (AP)—A 33-year-old man was awarded $250,000 Friday for the loss of his legs in a railroad accident.

Morton Coward was awarded the sum by a Circuit Court jury for injuries sustained in an accident near Lenoir City, Tenn., a year ago, while working as a railroad engineer.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mrs. Zona Washburn, 38, former wife of a soft drink executive, complained in court Friday that the cost of living has gone up.

Mrs. Washburn asked that her alimony payments be increased from $50,000 to $74,000 a year.
